Selling Aggressive, Although Many Believe War's End Would Cause Upturn.

Only One Per Cent. Found This An early advance reflecting the strength of the near positions was followed by reactions of over $2 a bale in the cotton market yesterday. March contracts sold off from 21.02 to 30.39c., closing at 30.45c., with the general list closing steady at a net decline of 32

The opening feature was the final women's apparel trades examined last evening up of the January position. It was the last notice day, and trading in control was found to be suffering from ne delivery ended at noon, but notices or about 3,000 bales were promptly topped, and there seemed to be a larger utstanding interest than anticipated. Shorts bid the price up to 31.35c, at the start, or 35 points above Thursday's closing figures, but at this level the more urgent demand seemed to be supplied. As soon as January eased the general market sold off under a renewal to-day have been educated to take better than the start and that manufactures.

Although it is still the opinion in many quarters that the end of the war would mean higher prices, yesterday's selling was again accompanied by talk that peace would be followed by a decline. At times the selling was quite aggressive. Covering and buying by trade interests caused slight rallies at conditions of their factories. Furthermore, Dr. Price believes, the falling off in immigration, due to the war, has had a great deal to do with the decrease in disease among workers. Of the first 3,500 workers in the women's garment trades examined last year, only 33 were found to be tubercular.

Exports for this week amounted to only 28,712 bales, against 164,213 last year, making for the season 2,389,156, against 3,658,409 last year. The visible supply of American cotton showed an increase of 49,859 bales for the week, compared with a decrease of 80,619 last The board of managers of the Cotton
